XcelPlus Inaugurates Sales of Alternative Fuel GlyClene™ With First Delivery to Oldcastle Materials - Tuesday, Mar. 17, 2009

TOPPING, Va. -- Alternative-fuels innovator XcelPlus Global Holdings (Pink Sheets:XPGH) has launched sales of its "green" fuel-oil supplement, GlyClene™, with the first deliveries scheduled for this week to an Alabama paving materials plant operated by Oldcastle Materials. According to XcelPlus President J. Michael Parsons, a long-term supply agreement between the two companies is pending positive results of additional tests, which are going on now to determine the long-term effects of GlyClene fuel on equipment used by Oldcastle.

XcelPlus Global's GlyClene and GlyCoal are new alternative, renewable fuels produced with a proprietary process using waste byproducts from biodiesel production. As such, they qualify as "green" fuels for use to offset fossil fuel consumption and the carbon emissions resulting from burning fossil fuels. Oldcastle Materials intends to use GlyClene fuel supplement in its U.S. concrete kilns and asphalt plants.

Oldcastle Materials, headquartered in Atlanta, Georgia, and a subsidiary of CRH, Dublin, Ireland, is the largest U.S. producer of asphalt paving materials and fifth largest producer of ready-mix concrete.
